DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Giordano, III et al (US 6,285,364 B1).

Claims 1 and 17:

Giordano discloses a method for managing calls initiated from a phone device of an Internet-capable appliance (such as a personal digital assistant (pda) or Internet-capable telephone), (abstract; col. 1, lines 8-11, 18-22, 36-41). The apparatus and method for organizing and displaying Internet and telephone information is initiated in response to a call signal (abstract; col. 2, lines 27-56). A graphical user interface (GUI) enables the user to initiate a phone call in response to a dial signal (col. 5, lines 14-39; col. 6, lines 31-51).

Claims 2, 10, and 18:

See claim 1. Giordano teaches an Internet-compatible telephone having a display screen 82, a touchpad 81, a telephone dial pad 87, a call device to control the phone device and display a selectable interface, a telephone task 84 for implementing telephone functions, such as initiating and terminating telephone calls (figs. 5, 6; col. 6, lines 36-61; col. 7, lines 34-42; col. 8, lines 20-39).

Claims 3 and 19:

Giordano teaches a talk button icon 48 (figs. 3, 7; col. 7, lines 8-9).

Claims 4, 13, and 20:

Giordano teaches suspending a current application when the application is other than the call device (col. 1, lines 43-47; col. 6, lines 47-51).

Claims 5 and 21:

Giordano teaches a redial function (figs. 3, 7; col. 5, lines 30-34).

Claims 6 and 22:

Giordano teaches receiving a phone number for a phone call, and searching a name associated with the phone number in memory (col. 2, lines 62-65; col. 5, lines 23-25; abstract; figs. 3, 7).

Claims 7 and 23:

Giordano teaches a timer 88 (col. 6, lines 50-51; col. 7, lines 16-19).
Giordano teaches that the event handler generates interrupts that control the interface (slide-up window) upon occurrence of predefined events or context-based triggers, such as a timer 88 event (col. 6, lines 47-51). The interface slides up and slides down when the timer is triggered, that is, it opens when a call starts and closes when the call ends (abstract, lines 5-8; col. 6, lines 65-67; col. 7, lines 1-4).

Claims 8 and 24:

Giordano teaches that the user can add information (name, phone number) to the address book (col. 2, lines 62-65; col. 5, lines 20-59).

Claims 9 and 25:

Giordano teaches that the event handler recognizes the termination of a condition, and in response to that condition the screen is displayed or retracted (col. 4, lines 56-67; col. 5, lines 1-13; col. 9, lines 17-23). Even though the screen appears to slide at some speed, a lapse time is always necessary between the time the event handler recognizes the termination of a condition and the time the window starts to slide up or down.

Claim 11:

Giordano teaches that phone calls are placed and received according to the user selections (col. 5, lines 14-48).

Claims 12, 14, and 15:

Giordano teaches a touch sensitive screen (recognizes a touch on its surface) and a user input device such as a touch pad for initiating or terminating a call and/or for adding information to the address book (col. 2, lines 43-65; col. 4, lines 21-26; col. 5, lines 20-26; col. 6, lines 36-53).

Claim 16:

See claim 12. Giordano teaches a system that integrates Internet functions with traditional telephone functions including telephony features, such as speaker phone (microphone), (col. 2, lines 16-22; col. 7, lines 1-3). The microphone may be deactivated when the user terminates a call by pressing the touch pad.

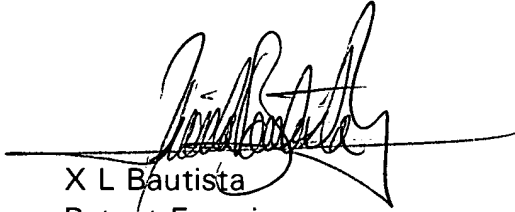

Conclusion

Applicant is required under 37 C.F.R. § 1.111(c) to consider these references fully when responding to this action. The documents cited therein teach integrated graphical user interfaces provided for the Internet and telephone function screens, which allow a user to initiate and terminate telephone calls.
